

FOR PRESIDENT,
BENJAMIN HARRISON
OF INDIANA.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
LEVI P. MORTON
OF NEW YORK.

CHARLES CROCKER.

Charles Crocker, the railroad man who died recently, left $35,000,000. A good many people improve the opportunity to accuse the dead man of piling up a vast lot of money by robbing the people.

Now, as a matter of fact, Crocker got his money by economy, hard work and good habits. He began working for $2 a week, which shows that he was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth by any means. While other boys were out fishing for suckers he was putting in hard licks. He didn't drink and he didn't gamble his earnings away, and he kept aloof from fast company.

Of course about the same time there were other boys in the same town with Crocker, who were of the same age and had the same chances as Crocker. But they wanted to be "bloody," and their money and health was frittered away in dissipation and fast living, night hurrahs and having a good time.

These boys had a good deal more fun than Crocker early in life, but when they reached the age when they could really enjoy life they were too poverty stricken and too broken in health.

Crocker worked hard for what he got to make a start with; worked with his hands to get the start, and after he got it he gave his hands a rest and let his brains take the shift.

He built the biggest railroad in the United States and helped to join both sides of a big continent. Is $35,000,000 too large a reward for such a piece of work? We think not.

SOLICITOUS FOR HARRISON.

The Democratic journals are suddenly becoming very solicitous of the welfare of General Harrison.

They think if Blaine is allowed to go into the State of Indiana and make protection speeches that he will overshadow Harrison which of course would be a very deadful thing.

From present indications however, as large a man as Blaine is, it will take a good deal bigger man than he to overshadow Ben Harrison whose protection speeches show him to be fully as able a protectionist speaker as Blaine.

Harrison does not fear to walk about with Blaine in Indiana or elsewhere. He has invited Blaine to come to Indiana and talk to the people along with him and no one seems to be apprehensive of the result but the Democrats.

MIDSUMMER JOKES.

Madam Adam says Bismarck is a liar. Probably she wants to connect her own name with the kind of liar she thinks Bismarck is.

Lew Wallace, who wrote Ben Hur, is now at work on the life of Ben Hur-rison.

Since the Central Pacific has changed its name the proper way to mention it is Southern Pacific nee Central Pacific.

The above jokes are merely samples of the general style of midsummer fun we are sending out in job lots to country exchanges in Virginia City, Eureka and Reno.

San Francisco has a woman who entices young girls into her house, and after drugging them turns them over to her wealthy patrons. She then sells them to houses of ill fame for $300 apiece. This woman, along with her "wealthy patrons," ought to be lynched on the same telegraph pole.
